This fleece-and-crochet pattern booklet is sure to make the best baby gift ever! The darling mermaid tail/blanket combo is not your typical baby cocoon or sacque, but instead places the pretty fantasy mermaid tail onto the bottom edge of a doubled-up fleece receiving blanket. Slip your little one in between the soft fleece blankets, fold left and fold right to swaddle, and baby becomes a mermaid for the day!

The materials you need for this Mermaid tail crochet project include: 2 yards of fleece, medium weight yarn (no. 4) in mermaid tail color, light weight yarn (no. 3) or embroidery or crewel floss in contrast color, a tapestry or yarn needle, scissors, and a size I (5.50 mm) aluminum crochet hook. A skill level of at least beginner (you need to know chain stitch, single crochet, double crochet, and triple crochet) is necessary. I love little projects like these because they give you that wonderful satisfaction when they are complete, but you haven't sunk a month - or two months - into them! That's why it's my obsession to create crochet pattern designs which combine "unique" with "quick." The addition of the fleece element is part of this goal: I feel that you don't lose anything when you combine fabric with crochet, but on the contrary, add softness, variety of texture and speed of completion to your projects.

Thanks for looking at my crochet patterns! Of course, feel free to make and sell items from my designs, but please do not pass around the patterns themselves, as they are my own copyrighted work! If you'd like to see more, check out all of my patterns on Amazon by searching for "susan kennedy crochet"!
